Towards meetings with meaning

By V.W. Bro. Jim Robinson

ow! Another year is over already. So far I have not had any trouble remembering to write 2019 on things, because I never got used to writing 2018. We wrapped up the 2018 Masonic year before Christmas with a big flurry of business. We had elections in Lodge, Scottish Rite, Eastern Star, and Shrine Club. We had Juneau Masonic Center Association business, long-range planning meetings, budget meetings, and way too many other meetings. The Shrine Club held its second annual children's Christmas party. The one thing we were missing was more fun.

This year we are off to a good start. It looks as though we will still be busy, but with a little planning and forethought, we should be able to get past the necessary work, and get to the real reasons we joined this fraternity – education, camaraderie, fellowship, and maybe even a little bit of fun.

We will have some degree work to do, and we will be working more on our community outreach than we did last year. I bet all of us know someone who is a Mason in his heart, although he just might not know it yet. If you recognize the Masonic virtues of Faith, Hope and Charity in a friend or colleague, it is not wrong or improper to mention to him you know a place where there are other men like him where he might find a new family. And if you know a brother Mason in town who has not been out to a meeting for a while, for whatever reason, please encourage him to come out to something. We are not going to have long, drawn-out business discussions at our meetings this year. We are going to take care of building business at JMCA meetings, Shrine Club business at Shrine Club meetings, and planning and finance business at appropriate committee meetings. The plan for this year is to have meetings with meaning and to provide a place where we can develop as Masons and as men.

I am looking forward to having an engaging, enlightening and interesting education program this year, as well as a fun and inclusive social program. I want to re-engage with our brethren who have gotten out of the habit of coming out to meetings. I also want to develop closer ties with our brother and sister organizations here in town as well as throughout Southeast. I will be looking to all of you for ideas, help and support this year as we strive to make our Lodge a better place to be.

he Juneau Rainbow Girls will support the Capital City's animal shelters during its coming term.

In support of that effort, the Girls will collect one or two specific items the shelters need each month. If you'd like to aid the Girls in their efforts, you can drop items off at the Juneau Masonic Center.

The requested items are:

- January: One yard of fleece, or towels
- February: Copy paper and 3-inch Post-It notes
  - March: Toilet paper
  - April: Cleaning supplies
  - May: Creamy peanut butter
- June: Ziploc bags (quart or gallon size)

The Girls have also announced their tentative schedule for the first term of 2019. Many of the events are open to all, and the Girls have made it known they welcome sideliners.

d-hoc." Maybe that's the sound you make when you're asked to serve on another committee.

And that's understandable. Too often, these bodies mean little other than long nights of pummeling dead horses. One or two members, who already do the work of three or four other boards, do what they can, but much of the labor remains incomplete.

Or worse, these committees do nothing at all.

This is an unfortunate, but all too common, state of affairs for committees in all organizations, including Masonic ones. Unfortunate because, when working properly, committees can make the work of the larger body go much more smoothly — and quickly.

Committees ideally will do most of the heavy lifting of lodge business. They will draft budgets, plan social events, audit the books and other labor that takes time away from the lodge's true labor — Masonry.

Mt. Juneau-Gastineaux Lodge No. 21 has such committees, but oftentimes brothers are unaware they exist or don't know what they do. Here's a sampling of those bodies and what they do: Competition for these awards is fierce, and the committee often has to make hard decisions as to who will receive them. This program is an important part of the Lodge's community outreach and youth support. The Committee also distributes other money donated to the lodge from time to time for scholarship purposes.

• Finance Committee: Three or more Master Masons, one of whom is the Treasurer. This Committee has the ultimate responsibility of preparing the first draft of the Lodge's budget each year. While • Scholarship Committee: This group of at least four's primary duty is to award and otherwise administer the Stevens Trust Scholarships. This scholarship program provides approximately $25,000 a year to Juneau-area high school seniors planning on post-secondary education.

the day-to-day bookkeeping and investing is handled by professionals, this Committee provides general oversight and direction to those efforts as well.

• Audit Committee: This is a committee of three or more, usually but not necessarily Past Masters, who provides a yearly review of the Lodge's finances and documentation to ensure all spending has been approved by the Lodge and proper records are kept. While the Committee rarely finds major problems, it's the rare Master who goes through his year without a ding or two from this group. This is a good thing, as it keeps the Lodge's officers striving to create the perfect ashlar of best business practices.

There are two other standing committees: The Continuing Board of Trustees and the Past Masters' Committee. Their memberships are defined in the bylaws, so the Master does not make appointments to them. The Trustees administer the Lodge's property. However, since its real property interests are managed by the Juneau Masonic Center Association, the material under its control is limited. The Past Masters' Committee oversees the Getchell Fund, and provides advice to the Lodge and its officers.

The Master also has the power to create ad-hoc committees. These often include social scheduling, long-term planning and bylaw review, though other special committees have been created from time to time.

While the Lodge is much more than its business, it does need to ensure its financial and administrative needs are taken care of. Assigning the lion's share of this work to committees allows Stated Meetings to move bevond routine business and focus on education, ritual work, discussion, fellowship ... in other words, Masonry. If you get tapped to serve on a committee, consider choking back your initial "adhoc" reaction, and saying "yes" instead. This helps the Lodge improve itself so it can help you improve yourself in Masonry.
